This tutorial shows how human-computer interaction can be based on discourse modeling, even without employing speech or natural language. Trust Level 2 — Member Members keep coming back to your community over a series of weeks; they have not only read, but actively participated long and consistently enough to be trusted with full citizenship. How do users learn about the trust system? These other models, as I define them in this note, are the world model, the user model, the system model, and the text model.
