Working with Indigenous Leadership and Indigenous Environments

Leaders of the Turtle Mountain Tribe of Chippewa are expected to exemplify these values. It was the first medicinal plant given to the people, and it is often offered as a gift to other medicinal plants, to honour the spirits or to begin a personal conversation with the creator. The plant associated with the southern section is sage.

A broader examination of cultural, social, and political factors is important when working with and caring for Indigenous persons.

Native American Symbolic Circles

Among many of the Indian nations of the Northwest, the year was divided into two periods. Krumm described the leadership roles of four American Indian women as tribal college presidents: Dr. The ritual of the ceremony can be seen like a tool to enter or engage in the ceremony, such as cedar, fire, Grandfather stones and the Four Sacred Directions and colors being used as a path into the other place, or transcendence if you want to use that word.
