Most, if not all, people have several archetypes at play in their personality construct; however, one archetype tends to dominate the personality in general. Its founder, the living Buddha, dwelt on the border of Nepal shortly before Confucius. Such a life is lived as a beautiful and graceful coordinated interaction with others according to conventionally established forms that express mutual respect.

A sort of middle course, has, indeed, been proposed by some, by which students for admission to college are required to have some elementary knowledge of Latin and Greek, but after they are once admitted, the ancient languages are to be thrown aside, and modern languages alone attended to.

Confucius (Stanford Encyclopedia of Philosophy)

A related criticism in the text of the Mozi is that tradition does not hold normative authority simply because it is tradition, for there was a time when the practice in question was not tradition but new chapter 39. By contrast, bowing after one ascends the stairs constitutes an unacceptable change in attitude. But might we not, by making the college more accessible to different descriptions of persons, enlarge our numbers, and in that way, increase our income? The committee of the corporation, to whom was referred the motion, to inquire into the expediency of dispensing with the study of the ancient languages, as a part of the regular course of instruction in this college, having requested the views of the faculty on the subject, we would respectfully submit the following considerations.
