As the words read, the passage is appropriate to any disciple of Paul as the writer. On this account he assumes that a Hebrew Aramaic original writing of Paul forms the substratum of the epistle, but that our present epistle is only a version or adaptation of that original writing by Luke, designed for Hellenes. Not only is for him, too, the same objection, which his teacher already had undertaken to set aside, still of sufficient weight for him to attempt its removal in a new, though, it is true, equally unsatisfactory manner; but also the un-Pauline character of the language in the epistle does not escape his glance.

Nemo non ignorat, Novatum et Novatianos, lapsis post baptismum non esse concedendam remissionem docuisse, hoc, 130 Stkc in II. The readers are therefore to be on their guard against apostatizing from the New Covenant, for their guilt and exposure to punishment would be thereby incomparably augmented.

The promise of God of an entering into His rest is still unfulfilled; to you, also, the entrance is open, if you have faith, whereas rebelliousness against the admonition which is addressed anew unto you delivers you over to the vindictive righteousness of God Hebrews 4:1-13. Réflexions sur la place de la doctrine de la prédestination au sein de la théologie de Martin Bucer. Persouae Pauli indicia immediata adeo non desunt in 12 Epist.

Of such a difference—and surely just this point would have called for proof Josephus says in truth not a single word, but, on the contrary, leaves the opposite impression. Necnon commentarios in omnes Pauli Epistolas sed incerto Authore. Hence, and because His resurrection Body seems to have been bloodless—see Luke xxiv.
