The Nature of Theology One could say that our modern concept of theology began with the Greeks, even though it gained its content and method with Christianity.

The Human Person in Science and Theology by Niels Henrik Gregersen

Indeed, the rationalists of religion pursuing the path of metaphysics postulate the concept of God: but even then, at the highest level of religious consciousness, the concept of God is a matter of faith. It is therefore easy to see why the churches have always fought science and persecuted its devotees.

The Human Person in Contemporary Science and Theology

For that matter, is it really necessary to know anything about God, if he, she or they are so distantly mysterious and insubstantial? If an object in motion stays in motion, and an object will continue on its current path, and for every action, there is an opposite and equal reaction, how can the earth be where it is after what is known as a big bang? Therefore, science is equally considered as one of the important 1263 Words 6 Pages Science and Culture, a Significant Impact on Enlightenment Era The Age of Enlightenment, also known as the Age of Reason occurred during the 18th and 19th centuries.
