Accordingly, users of University information resources do not have a reasonable expectation of privacy when using the University's information resources.

The ethical, legal and political minefield of stem cell research

Based physically at the Yaounde - Cameroon, it is about a unique structure of support which aims at improving all the practices which contribute to the smooth running of higher education in Africa. Students may also be entitled to contractual rights, since many student handbooks include academic freedom provisions.

Dangers and impacts of college hazing: Research roundup

Higher education institutions generally do not monitor hazing incidents or allegations. This has been done historically in various countries, but we are teetering on the edge of what is done in third world countries. HSIs use these government grants to fund on-campus resources and support services that cater specifically to Hispanic students.
