They tend to think of accountants as nice people and their a not always happy with my seeming cynicism.

SEC.gov

Some have suggested that these reductions resulted from Sarbanes-Oxley and the improvement in financial reporting caused by related reforms. We decided instead that what we needed was a small group of people focused on case generation — on exploring proactive initiatives that would generate new accounting fraud investigations for staff in the Division to pursue.

I have great confidence in our trial team and I am more than willing to try more cases — particularly if they all go as well as the Tourre trial. And so, in a post-crisis world, the SEC must renew its focus on financial reporting and accounting so that investors and regulators receive the accurate information that sustains our markets. We recognize that accounting requires that management and auditors use their professional judgment but we will not tolerate decisions that are reached in bad faith, recklessly or without proper consideration of the facts and circumstances.

Auditors for broker-dealers must also be independent from their audit clients. It is in many respects a cathartic moment. Financial reports must provide transparency for investors, and must not obscure the truth, even if that truth is inconvenient.

An Empirical Investigation of the Relationship Between Change in Corporate Social Performance and Financial Performance: A Stakeholder Theory Perspective

We have brought actions against audit committees in the past for failing to recognize red flags and we intend to continue holding committees and their members accountable when they shirk their responsibilities. The income statement discloses what the company earned and what it spent to earn it.
