Northern Plains Tribes

This thing, with its initial pretensions to objectivity soon abandoned will really get your dander up, get the old blood circulating fast, and make you start looking around to starta Warrior Society in YOUR little corner, eh? The Hidatsa also provided some information to the Lewis and Clark Expedition, but were not as openly warm as the Mandan were. Anyone may use the information provided here freely for personal use only.

List of Indian reserves in Alberta

Why does a band with an on-reserve population of 1,100 people — about the same as your average 25-storey urban apartment building — need a 14-member council and 46 senior staff to keep it running? The Saulteaux people are represented by only one band in Alberta, the O'Chiese First Nation. Though severely threatened — and in certain cases extinguished — by colonial forces, Indigenous culture, and social systems have shaped the development of Canada and continue to grow and thrive despite extreme adversity.
